Haskell by Example

Haskell is an advanced purely-functional programming language.

Haskell by Example is a port of Go by Example to Haskell. Check out the first example or browse the full list below.

Hello World

Values

Variables

Constants

For

If/Else

Switch

Arrays

Slices

Maps

Range

Functions

Multiple Return Values

Variadic Functions

Closures

Recursion

Structs

Methods

Interfaces

Errors

Goroutines

Channels

Channel Buffering

Channel Synchronization

Channel Directions

Select

Timeouts

Non-Blocking Channel Operations

Timers

Tickers

Worker Pools

Rate Limiting

Atomic Counters

Mutexes

Stateful Goroutines

Sorting

Sorting by Functions

Panic

Defer

Collection Functions

String Functions

String Formatting Regular Expressions JSON Time Epoch Time Formatting / Parsing Random Numbers Number Parsing URL Parsing SHA1 Hashes Base64 Encoding Reading Files Writing Files

Line Filters

Command-Line Arguments

Command-Line Flags

Environment Variables

Spawning Processes

Exec'ing Processes

Signals

Exit

$ diff go-by-example haskell-by-example

- -Pointers
- -Closing Channels
- -Range over Channels

by @lotz84 | source | license